Period for Reply

A SHORTENED STATUTORY PERIOD FOR REPLY IS SET TO EXPIRE 3 MONTH(S) FROM THE MAILING DATE OF THIS COMMUNICATION.

- Extensions of time may be available under the provisions of 37 CFR 1.136(a). In no event, however, may a reply be timely filed after SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- If the period for reply specified above is less than thirty (30) days, a reply within the statutory minimum of thirty (30) days will be considered timely.
- If NO period for reply is specified above, the maximum statutory period will apply and will expire SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- Failure to reply within the set or extended period for reply will, by statute, cause the application to become ABANDONED (35 U.S.C. § 133). Any reply received by the Office later than three months after the mailing date of this communication, even if timely filed, may reduce any earned patent term adjustment. See 37 CFR 1.704(b).

DETAILED ACTION

Status of claims

Claims 1-36 are pending in this application per the response to office action filed by Applicant on June 13, 2005.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed June 13, 2005 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant's arguments/amendments with respect to claim 1-36 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-2, 5, 7-10, 12-13, 16, 18, 19-21, 23-24, 27, 29-31, 32 and 34-36, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Aldis et al U.S. Patent Application Publication 2004/0039916 in view of Hastings et al U.S. Patent Application Publication No. 2004/0034603 A1.

Art Unit: 3621

1. As per claim 1, 12 and 23, Aldis et al discloses a method comprising:

maintaining a software license bank for a customer, software licenses stored in the software license bank not being associated with specific machines (fig.1 and 11; 0013, 0014, 0018, claim 61); and accessing a web application to allow a user to automatically obtain a software license for a specific machine from the software license bank, wherein the software license is associated with a first license key (figs.1, 6 and 7; 0014, 0016, 0017, 0018, 0021, 0023, 0061, 0153).

What Aldis et al does not explicitly teach is upgrading/downgrading software associated with first license key including obtaining a second license key and disabling the first license key.

Hastings et al discloses the method comprising upgrading/downgrading software associated with first license key including obtaining a second license key and disabling the first license key (see fig. 4b and 5; 0100; 0017; 0019; 0021; 0037; 0047).

Accordingly it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of applicant's invention to modify the system of Aldis et al and provide the method of upgrading/downgrading software associated with first license key including obtaining a second license key and disabling the first license key in view of the teachings of Hastings et al in order to ensure that user paid for features used or licensed.

2. As per claim 2, 13 and 24, Aldis et al further discloses the method, wherein the software licenses available from the software license bank depend on a predetermined contract (0022).

3. As per claim 5, 16 and 27, Aldis et al further discloses the method, wherein the software license bank contains an unlimited number of licenses for some period of time (fig. 2 and 4, 0078).
4. As per claim 7, 18 and 29, Aldis et al further discloses the method, wherein the web application maintains digital records of software licenses, the digital records indicating rights associated with the software licenses (fig. 2, and 4, 0005, 0015, claim 79).
5. As per claim 8, 19 and 30, Aldis et al further discloses the method, wherein web application can be used to adjust the rights associated with the software license (0022, 0069, 0097).
6. As per claim 9, 20 and 31, Aldis et al further discloses the method, wherein the web application is used to provide license keys for the software (see figs. 2 and 19, 0077, 0087, claim 40).
7. As per claim 10, 21 and 32, Aldis et al further discloses the method, wherein the web application uses role based security (fig.1; 0021, 0022, 0023).

Art Unit: 3621

34. As per claim 34, 35 and 36, Aldis et al failed to explicitly disclose the method wherein the software is downgraded.

Hastings et al discloses the method wherein the software is downgraded (see fig. 4b and 5; 0100; 0017; 0019; 0021; 0037; 0047).

Accordingly it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of applicant's invention to modify the system of Aldis et al and provide the method wherein the software is downgraded view of the teachings of Hastings et al in order to ensure that user paid for features used.

Claims 3, 11, 14, 22, 25 and 33, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Aldis et al U.S. Patent Application Publication 2004/0039916 in view of Hastings U.S. Patent Application Publication No. 2004/0034603 A1 as applied to claim 1 above, and further in view of Ramachandran et al U.S. Patent Application Publication 2003/0083998.

8. As per claim 3, 14 and 25, both Aldis et al Hastings et al failed to explicitly disclose the method, wherein the software license bank stores predetermined dollar amount of licenses.

Ramachandran et al discloses the method, wherein the software license bank stores predetermined dollar amount of licenses (0018, 0172).

Accordingly it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of applicant's invention to modify the system of Aldis et al and provide the method wherein the software license bank stores predetermined dollar amount of licenses in view of the teachings of Ramachandran et al in order to ease and estimate income by provider.

9. As per claim 11, 22, and 33, both Aldis et al and Hastings et al failed to explicitly disclose the method, wherein the web application stores configuration information for the computers running the licensed software.

Ramachandran et al discloses the method, wherein the web application stores configuration information for the computers running the licensed software (0031, 0068, 0072, 0073, 0109, 0118).

Accordingly it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of applicant's invention to modify the system of Aldis et al and provide the method wherein the web application stores configuration information for the computers running the licensed software in view of the teachings of Ramachandran et al in order to provide adequate security and ensure authorized users have access to licensed resources.

Claims 4, 6, 15, 17, 26 and 28, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Aldis et al U.S. Patent Application Publication 2004/0039916 in view of Hastings U.S. Patent Application Publication No. 2004/0034603 A1 as applied to claim 1 above, and further in view of Eng U.S. Patent Application Publication 2002/0169725.

Art Unit: 3621

10. As per claim 4, 15 and 26, both Aldis et al and Hastings et al failed to explicitly disclose the method, wherein the software license bank stores a predetermined CPU count of software licenses.

Eng discloses the method, wherein the software license bank stores a predetermined CPU count of software licenses (figs. 1, 9 and 10, 0036).

Accordingly it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of applicant's invention to modify the system of Aldis et al and provide the method wherein the software license bank stores a predetermined CPU count of software licenses in view of the teachings of Eng in order to track license usages.

11. As per claim 6, 17 and 28, both Aldis et al and Hastings et al failed to explicitly disclose the method, wherein the software license bank stores a predetermined user count of software licenses.

Eng discloses the method, wherein the software license bank stores a predetermined user count of software licenses (figs. 1, 9 and 10, 0036, 0052).

Accordingly it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of applicant's invention to modify the system of Aldis et al and provide the method wherein the software license bank stores a predetermined user count of software licenses in view of the teachings of Eng in order to track license usages.

Conclusion

Art Unit: 3621

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.

Examiner's Note: Examiner has cited particular columns and line numbers in the references as applied to the claims below for the convenience of the applicant. Although the specified citations are representative of the teachings in the art and are applied to the specific limitations within the individual claim, other passages and figures may apply as well. It is respectfully requested that the applicant, in preparing the responses, fully consider the references in entirety as potentially teaching all or part of the claimed invention, as well as the context of the passage as taught by the prior art or disclosed by the examiner.
